

Wandiri Gitogo is a seasoned Business Intelligence Analyst. I have over five years' experience as a research and data analyst with proficiency in database tools such as MS Excel, Tableau, and Power Bi. My background in Statistics will provide the required experience in research, monitoring, and evaluation. The roles align with my interests in promoting economic development in marginalized areas and increasing opportunities for youth and gender inclusion.

In my previous role as a Business Analyst at Kenyan Wallstreet, I carried out field research on thematic areas such as climate change and promotion of economic development in conflict zones. I am time conscious when delivering projects to clients to ensure I meet the deadline. I have strong communication skills that will facilitate the sharing of findings through visualization in graphs and charts. As an analyst, it will let me offer solutions to address complex humanitarian and development challenges.
